AUTOMOBILE FOR BUSINESS.

In order to keep abreast of the times, and to still further improve their facilities for promptly and efficiently handling a steadily growing real estate and rental business, Trent & Co. are "breaking in" a gasoline runabout; and Mr. Beadie, the popular manager of their real estate department, is becoming a familiar figure in all sections of Honolulu as he hurries about attending to the wants of the firm's clients. It is getting to be a common thing for people looking for homes or hunting houses to be directed to Trent & Co.'s offices, where they are not only sure of meeting with prompt and courteous service, but where they are almost certain to find what they are looking for.

The business of the Pacific Hardware Co., Ltd., just sold out, had its origin in the late H. Dimond's ship chandlery and hardware business of about 1863, on King street where Woods & Sheldon were lately. It was bought by B. F. Dillingham and Alfred Castle, as B. F. Dillingham & Co., and in 1885 was incorporated as the Pacific Hardware Co. The corporation in its time acquired the hardware trades of Sam. Nott, Castle & Cooke, John T. Waterhouse and Hawaiian Hardware Co., also latterly the sporting goods business of Woods & Sheldon.
